

Public History, Minor

Director: J. Patrick Mullins, Ph.D.

The interdisciplinary minor in public history allows students to examine the ways the historic method is applied outside of the classroom, including in museums and other cultural programs. For students seeking a career in public history, the minor better prepares them for advanced study in specialized programs. In addition to history courses, students can explore related disciplines such as anthropology and can take specialized courses in fields such as marketing, management or advertising. Students interested in this minor should see the public history adviser in the Department of History. As students select courses to meet the requirements for the Marquette Core Curriculum (MCC), they should pay close attention to the list of recommended courses for this minor.

Public History Minor

The minor in public history consists of six courses (18 credit hours), including three required courses in history (9 credit hours) and three elective courses (9 credit hours). Students may choose to focus in Museum Curatorship or Museum Management by selecting three electives from one of the two focal areas. Students are not required to choose a focus and may alternatively select any three electives listed below.

Notes:

- For History majors also pursuing the Public History minor a maximum of two courses may be counted toward the completion of both the major and the minor.
