Degrees Offered

Theology
Master of Arts in Theology (M.A.)
Master of Arts in Christian Doctrine (M.A.C.D.)

Religious Studies
Doctor of Philosophy (Ph.D.)

Program Descriptions

The Department of Theology offers graduate programs aimed at providing students an integrated approach to theology emphasizing the scriptural, historical, systematic, and ethical approaches to study in the Catholic and Christian religious traditions. We aim to develop scholars capable of making significant contributions to theological research and teaching a broad range of subjects in theology and religion. Our programs have prepared graduates to secure teaching positions in over 200 colleges, universities, and other educational institutions as well as for vocations in pastoral ministry and other service-oriented and non-profit organizations.

The Master of Arts in Theology (M.A.) program is intended primarily for students who intend to pursue doctoral degrees in theology or religious studies. It also serves those working or aspiring to work in Church-related organizations involving teaching, religious formation, or other forms of theological communication.

The Master of Arts in Christian Doctrine (M.A.C.D.) program focuses on ecumenical appropriation and communication of Christian doctrine for students teaching or aspiring to teach in Catholic high schools, those interested in contributing to other avenues of religious education or formation, those interested in serving other pastoral needs in their religious communities, and those seeking personal theological enrichment.

The Doctor of Philosophy in Religious Studies (Ph.D.) program leads to a terminal academic degree signifying its recipient's advanced ability to teach and conduct research in the academic specialization of his or her choosing. Options for specialization include Judaism and Christianity in Antiquity, Historical Theology, Systematics Theology, Theological Ethics, and Theology and Society (including Healthcare and Medical Ethics).

Prerequisites for Admission

Master of Arts in Theology (M.A.) applicants should have an undergraduate degree with a major in theology, religious studies, or another field appropriate to their theological interests. An undergraduate degree with a minor in one of those fields is also acceptable. Ideally, applicants should possess basic familiarity with Christian Scripture and doctrines. Opportunities to make up for deficiencies in undergraduate education are available to students in need.

Master of Arts in Christian Doctrine (M.A.C.D.) applicants should have (a) an undergraduate degree with a major in theology or religious studies, and/or (b) a personal or professional background involving theology or religion. Ideally, applicants should possess basic familiarity with Christian Scripture and doctrines. Opportunities to make up for deficiencies in undergraduate education are available to students in need.

Doctor of Philosophy in Religious Studies (Ph.D.) applicants should possess a master's degree or equivalent graduate degree in theology, religious studies, or another field appropriate to their academic interests.

Application Deadlines

Master of Arts in Theology (M.A.) (https://www.marquette.edu/grad/programs-masters-theology.php) applicants seeking financial aid must submit their completed applications, including all supporting documents, by December 15 of the calendar year prior to the fall academic term in which they wish to enroll in the program. The department normally does not consider requests for financial aid from applicants seeking to enroll in the spring or summer term. Applicants not seeking financial aid may submit their applications at any time, albeit no less than one month prior to the commencement of the academic term in which they wish to enroll in the program.

Master of Arts in Christian Doctrine (M.A.C.D.) (https://www.marquette.edu/grad/programs-theology-masters-christian-doctrine.php) applicants may submit their completed applications, including all supporting documents, at any time and may enroll in the program in the fall, spring, or summer academic term, albeit no less than one month prior to the commencement of the academic term in which they wish to enroll in the program. The department considers requests for financial aid regardless of the term in which applicants wish to enroll in the program.
Doctor of Philosophy in Religious Studies (Ph.D.) (https://www.marquette.edu/grad/programs-phd-religious-studies.php) applicants seeking financial aid must submit their completed applications, including all supporting documents, by December 15 of the calendar year prior to the fall academic term in which they wish to enroll in the program. The department normally does not consider requests for financial aid from applicants seeking to enroll in the program in the spring or summer term. Applicants not seeking financial aid may submit their applications at any time, albeit no less than one month prior to the commencement of the academic term in which they wish to enroll in the program.

Application Requirements

Applicants to all of the department's graduate programs must submit their applications to the Graduate School using its online application management system (https://graduate.admissions.marquette.edu/apply/).

Applicants to the M.A. program must submit the following materials:

1. A completed online (http://marquette.edu/grad/future_apply.shtml/) application form and fee.
2. Copies of transcripts from all previously attended higher education institutions other than Marquette University.¹
3. Results of the Graduate Record Examination (General Test only).
4. A statement of purpose indicating the applicant's reasons for wanting to enter the program, areas of academic interest, vocational objectives, reasons for selecting Marquette's program, and/or how the applicant stands to contribute to the program's demographic diversity.
   a. Applicants lacking an undergraduate degree in theology or religious studies should indicate in their statements of purpose relevant college course work reflected in their transcripts.
5. Three letters of recommendation.
6. International applicants must provide TOEFL scores or other acceptable proof of English proficiency.
   a. International applicants who have completed another master's degree or anticipate completing another master's degree at an English-speaking higher education institution prior to enrolling in the M.A. program may request a waiver of this requirement.

Applicants to the M.A.C.D. program must submit the following materials:

1. A completed online (http://marquette.edu/grad/future_apply.shtml/) application form and fee.
2. Copies of transcripts from all previously attended higher education institutions other than Marquette University.¹
3. A statement of purpose indicating the applicant's reasons for wanting to enter the program, areas of academic interest, vocational objectives, reasons for selecting Marquette's program, and/or how the applicant stands to contribute to the program's demographic diversity.
   a. Applicants lacking an undergraduate degree in theology or religious studies should indicate in their statements of purpose relevant college course work reflected in their transcripts.
4. Three letters of recommendation.
5. International applicants must provide TOEFL scores or other acceptable proof of English proficiency.
   a. International applicants who have completed a master's degree or anticipate completing a master's degree at an English-speaking higher education institution prior to enrolling in the M.A.C.D. program may request a waiver of this requirement.

Applicants to the Ph.D. program must submit the following materials:

2. Copies of transcripts from all previously attended higher education institutions other than Marquette University.¹
3. Results of the Graduate Record Examination (General Test only).
4. A statement of purpose indicating the applicant's reasons for wanting to enter the program, areas of academic interest, vocational objectives, reasons for selecting Marquette's program, and/or how the applicant stands to contribute to the program's demographic diversity.
   a. Applicants with language study experience should indicate formal graduate-level language course work reflected in their transcripts and/or private language study, along with estimations of present abilities reading, writing and speaking the language or languages studied.
5. An academic writing sample approximately 20 pages in length.
6. Three letters of recommendation.
   a. Applicants currently enrolled in Marquette's M.A. in Theology program must supply three new letters of recommendation speaking to their performances in the M.A. program.
7. International applicants must provide TOEFL scores or other acceptable proof of English proficiency.
   a. International applicants who have completed a master's degree or anticipate completing a master's degree at an English-speaking higher education institution prior to enrolling in the Ph.D. program may request a waiver of this requirement.

¹ Upon admission, final official transcripts from all previously attended higher education institutions, with certified English translations if their original language is not English, must be submitted to the Graduate School. Failure to submit those transcripts within the first five weeks of the student's term of enrollment may result in a registration hold barring the student from registering for future academic terms.
Theology Master of Arts (M.A.)

Specializations: General Studies, Historical Theology, Judaism and Christianity in Antiquity, Systematic Theology/Theological Ethics, Theology and Society

Students must complete 30 credit hours of course work, pass a comprehensive examination and submit an approved final project. Students choosing the Judaism and Christianity in antiquity, historical theology, and systematic theology/theological ethics specializations must demonstrate proficiency in a modern language other than English. The following program description summarizes those requirements. Additional information may be found in the Department of Theology’s Policies and Procedures (https://www.marquette.edu/theology/policies-and-procedures.php).

FOREIGN LANGUAGE REQUIREMENT
Students choosing the Judaism and Christianity in antiquity, historical theology or systematic theology/theological ethics specialization are required to demonstrate proficiency in German, French or another modern language other than English essential to their research agenda. Students typically fulfills this requirement by earning a grade of B or above in course work or on a language examination administered by the Department of Languages, Literatures and Cultures (https://www.marquette.edu/languages-literatures-cultures/).

COMPREHENSIVE EXAMINATION
The comprehensive examination is administered by the department's M.A. Examination Committee. The exam is offered once annually in April, although the committee entertains requests to administer it in November as needed. The examination is in three parts, each of which has two sections:

2. Historical Theology: Origin to Late Medieval, Late Medieval to Early Modern
3. Systematic Theology and Theological Ethics

The three parts of the comprehensive examination, each two hours in duration, are taken at the same examination session. Each part consists of six questions, of which students must answer three, including at least one from each section. All questions are based on the comprehensive examination bibliography and questions posted to the Department of Theology's website (https://www.marquette.edu/theology/forms-documents.php).

Specialization in General Studies
Students choosing the general studies option must opt for academic Plan B. They are required to complete the 18 credit hours of core course work as listed above, 12 credit hours of elective course work in any area or areas of specialization, and a non-credit master's essay.

Comprehensive paper

Each student must write a comprehensive final paper presenting an original examination of a topic of interest to the student and employ one or more methods of theological inquiry. The paper should integrate lessons learned in the program and applying those lessons to the student's personal and/or professional experiences, or, alternatively, the student's personal and/or career ambitions.

Religious Studies Doctorate (Ph.D.)

Specializations: Judaism and Christianity in Antiquity, Historical Theology, Systematic Theology, Theological Ethics, Theology and Society (includes Health Care Mission and Ethics)

Students must complete 60 credit hours of post-baccalaureate course work, up to 30 of which may be completed prior to their enrollment in the program, demonstrate proficiency in a classical language or languages relevant to their specializations, demonstrate proficiency in two modern languages other than English, pass a doctoral qualifying examination, complete 12 credit hours of dissertation research and produce and successfully defend a doctoral dissertation. The following program description summarizes those requirements. Additional information may be found in the Department of Theology’s Policies and Procedures (https://www.marquette.edu/theology/policies-and-procedures.php).

COURSE WORK REQUIREMENTS

Upon enrollment in the program, students chooses a specialization. The students' choice of specialization dictates the terms of the course of study. The department's principal areas of specialization are as follows:

- Judaism and Christianity in Antiquity (JUCA)
- Historical Theology (HITH)
• Systematic Theology (SYTH)
• Theological Ethics (THET)

Students choosing one of these specializations must complete 36 credit hours of course work in an area of specialization and typically completes 12 credit hours of course work in each of the two areas not chosen as the specialization. Note that the systematic theology and theological ethics areas are counted as a one for the purpose of course work distribution.

Students may choose from the following courses:

The department also offers an interdisciplinary specialization with two program options:

• Theology and Society (THSO)

Students choosing the theology and society specialization must complete at least 30 credit hours of course work in one of the Department of Theology’s principal areas of specialization, at least 9 credit hours of course work in each of the department’s other two principal areas of specialization, and 12 credit hours of graduate course work in one or more disciplines pertaining to their specific research agenda (e.g., economics, education, history, philosophy, political science or psychology).

• Health Care Mission and Ethics

Students choosing the health care mission and ethics option must complete at least 30 credit hours of course work in one of the Department of Theology’s principal areas of specialization, at least 9 credit hours in each of the department’s other two principal areas of specialization, and 12 credit hours of graduate course work pertaining to healthcare. (e.g., NURS 6007 Ethics, Policy and Health Care Advocacy, NURS 6009 Organizational and Systems Leadership, HEAL 6848 Health Care Policy, LAW 7156 Current Issues in Health Law, LAW 7181 Elder Law, LAW 7221 Health Law). Students choosing the interdisciplinary specialization may be required to take additional course work beyond the program's 60-credit-hour minimum to certify their qualifications in both theology and the allied disciplines of their choosing.

FOREIGN LANGUAGE REQUIREMENTS

Students choosing the Judaism and Christianity in antiquity specialization must demonstrate proficiency in classical Hebrew and Greek. Students choosing the historical theology specialization must demonstrate proficiency in Latin, Greek or another classical language essential to their research agenda. Students choosing the systematic theology or theological ethics specialization or the health care mission and ethics interdisciplinary program option must demonstrate proficiency in Latin. Students choosing the theology and society interdisciplinary program option is not required to demonstrate proficiency in a classical language.

All students must demonstrate proficiency in German, French or another modern language or languages other than English essential to the students' research agenda. Students are expected to demonstrate proficiency in one modern foreign language by the end of the first year of enrollment in the program and in two modern foreign languages by the end of the second year. Students typically fulfill these requirements by earning a grade of B or above in course work or on a language examination administered by the Department of (https://www.marquette.edu/languages-literatures-cultures/Languages, Literatures and Cultures (https://www.marquette.edu/languages-literatures-cultures/)).

DOCTORAL QUALIFYING EXAMINATION

Once students has fulfill all of the language requirements and no earlier than their final term completing course work, they are eligible to take the doctoral qualifying examination. The examination has two stages, namely the written examination and the oral examination. The written examination is in four parts, each three hours in duration, and is administered in two sessions, typically on consecutive days. Students complete two of the examination's parts during each session. The oral examination is administered following the administration of the written examination in a single session lasting approximately 90 minutes.

The doctoral qualifying examination is administered by a committee consisting of five of the department’s full-time, tenured or tenure-track faculty members selected by the student and approved by the department’s Graduate Committee. Students choosing the interdisciplinary specialization typically substitute one of the department's faculty committee members with a comparably credentialed faculty member in another department and/or institution. Each committee member examines the students on a topic or topics corresponding with their area of academic expertise. Students must earn the satisfactory evaluation of each of the five committee members to pass the examination. Students advances to doctoral candidacy once they pass the doctoral qualifying examination, completes their course work requirements, and fulfills all of their language requirements.
Doctoral Dissertation Credits
Upon advancing to doctoral candidacy, students must complete 12 credit hours of dissertation research. All dissertation credit hours must be completed before students schedule their dissertation defense.

Doctoral Dissertation
Students are encouraged to identify a dissertation topic and prospective director toward the end of the completion of the course work and/or while preparing for the doctoral qualifying examination. Students must choose a topic that falls within the scope of the department's common understanding of the discipline of Religious Studies and for which students can locate a member of the department's faculty possessing the competence and interest needed to serve as the dissertation's director.

Once students have determined a topic of research and secured the agreement of a director, they submit a doctoral dissertation outline to the department's Graduate Committee. The outline identifies the dissertation's director and no fewer than three more of the department's full-time, tenured or tenure-track faculty members to serve on the dissertation's review board. Students choosing the interdisciplinary specialization typically substitute one of the department's faculty board members with a comparably credentialed faculty member in another department and/or institution.

Once the Graduate Committee approves the students' doctoral dissertation outline, inclusive of the director and review board, students produce the dissertation to the satisfaction of their director. Upon its completion and the concurrent recommendation of the director, the dissertation is subjected to the board's review during a public defense lasting approximately two hours. Students must earn the satisfactory evaluation of each board member to secure the dissertation's approval.

Following the successful defense of the dissertation, students may be given a fixed amount of time to revise their work in light of the board's feedback. Students submit the final edition of the dissertation to the Graduate School in advance of their graduation.
