

Marquette Core Curriculum

Marquette University Core: Learning Outcomes

Responsible and Ethical Communicators

Marquette students will be able to responsibly and ethically use written, spoken and visual communication to express ideas, create meaning, build relationships, foster understanding and advocate for a better tomorrow.

Moral and Ethical Actors

Marquette students will be able to articulate appropriate professional and personal judgments that are rooted in an ethical and moral foundation and informed by Catholic, Jesuit thought. They will use these foundations to make decisions that promote stronger communities and a just society.

Citizens with Purpose

Marquette students will develop a sense of purpose professionally, personally and as global citizens who demonstrate critically reflective discernment processes that are rooted in their theological, intellectual and personal commitments.

Collaborators Promoting Equity and Justice across Cultural Contexts

Marquette students will develop skills to understand how power, positionality and privilege shape their own lives and those of others, locally and globally. They will be able to describe how racism, colonialism, classism, sexism, other forms of prejudice and other oppressive forces have impacted and continue to impact the well-being of marginalized groups and to identify historical and structural barriers to equity and inclusiveness. They will also be able to recognize the innate human dignity shared across diverse groups and to apply skills learned in class to work within and across cultures to promote justice and equity.

Leaders in Discovery

Marquette students will advance understanding of the world by identifying significant questions and then searching for answers based on a systematic process of discovery that is rooted in intellectual inquiry and the Jesuit liberal arts tradition.

Global Problem Solvers

Marquette students will be well practiced in cooperative and cross-disciplinary problem-solving skills and they will be able to present innovative solutions that draw from theological, philosophical, qualitative and quantitative perspectives to address the increasingly blurred lines between local and global challenges.

Foundations courses help students build a combined intellectual and practical base for subsequent learning both within the Core and throughout their undergraduate studies at Marquette. Foundations courses invite students to consider, from multiple angles, the wholeness and diversity of knowledge and its relevance to making change in the world. More specifically, they aim to engage students in contemplating, analyzing and communicating with others about concrete situations in multidisciplinary ways, drawing in particular on theology, philosophy and rhetoric. It is essential to help students to engage globally with people who are fundamentally different from themselves. As such, the Foundations tier includes an Engaging Social Systems and Values requirement. The goal of this Core requirement is to prepare students to encounter different social systems and engage with other systems of value. This requirement allows students to experience difference and lead them to work for greater equality and inclusivity. An important element of this part of the Core involves students reflecting upon and developing their capacity for engagement with others.

Discovery courses provide an opportunity for students to apply foundational learning and more deeply engage in interdisciplinary learning. Students choose one theme that best connects to their personal and professional goals for their Discovery requirements. Students take 4 courses from within their selected theme. Students take one course from each of three content areas of Humanities, Natural Science and Mathematics and Social Science, as well as one additional course (elective) from any of the three content areas. This tier allows students to discover the ways in which multiple disciplines approach a particular question, challenge or problem. Beyond the Foundations tier, students then have an opportunity to build upon their knowledge of foundational writing and ESSV concepts and sharpen their skills with more sophistication and in a second, highly experiential, ESSV designated requirement and a writing intensive-designated requirement. The second-level ESSV and writing requirements can be designated courses within or outside of the Core.

The Culminating course further integrates the Marquette Core experience, emphasizing reflection on and application of knowledge and skills developed in the Core. A special focus on vocation and discernment invites students to evaluate their course work at Marquette alongside their own worldview and transcendent commitments, in order to identify ways in which they are uniquely equipped to work for justice in the world. A collaborative, interdisciplinary analysis of a lasting problem in the local or global community presents a test-case for this integration of academic experience and personal faith for the promotion of justice. The course provides both a culminating Core experience and the foundation for an analogical application to students' lives and work after Marquette.

Marquette Core Curriculum (MCC) - 30 Credits

Foundation Tier - 15 credits

Discovery Tier - 12 credits

Students must complete four Discovery Tier courses, all from the SAME Discovery Theme. These four courses must include one course from each of the three content areas (Humanities, Natural Science and Mathematics and Social Science), and one elective (an additional course from any of the three content areas). A maximum of two courses in the Discovery Tier can be applied towards a primary major.

Students declare their Discovery Theme using the Discovery Tier Declaration Form (<https://www.marquette.edu/central/registrar/documents/form-undergraduate-declaration-change-of-core-curriculum-discovery-tier-theme.pdf>).

For students who participate in a full-time (12 credits or more) Marquette approved study abroad program, one study abroad course (minimum 2.5 transfer credits awarded) may fulfill the elective requirement of the Discovery Tier. Any additional MCC requirements may be fulfilled only when the approved transfer equivalent is an exact match to a specific MCC course.

Culminating Course - 3 credits

Code	Title	Hours
CORE 4929 or CORE 4929H	The Service of Faith and Promotion of Justice Honors Service of Faith and Promotion of Justice

Additional Requirements

1. Writing Intensive Requirement (WRIT) - Students must complete a course that is designated "WRIT." This requirement can be completed via one of their four Discovery Tier courses or through other degree requirements.
2. Engaging Social System and Values 2 (ESSV2) - Students must complete a course or approved experience that is designated "ESSV2." This requirement can be completed via one of their four Discovery Tier courses or through other degree requirements.

Grade Requirements

A grade of C or better is required in Honors MCC courses. A passing grade is required in non-Honors MCC courses.

Readmission

Students who are readmitting to the university and, in consultation with their college, determine that the completion of the MCC core requirements is the best course of action for completing their degree, are assigned MCC levels under the same parameters as transfer students.

Test and Transfer Credits

Test and transfer courses that are equivalent to approved MCC courses may be applied to fulfill MCC requirements, with the following exceptions: 1) CORE 4929 (<https://bulletin.marquette.edu/search/?P=CORE%204929>) must be completed at Marquette, 2) CORE 1929 (<https://bulletin.marquette.edu/search/?P=CORE%201929>) and WRIT courses apply only by approval from the director of the MCC requested via the Marquette Core Curriculum Substitution form (<https://www.marquette.edu/central/registrar/documents/form-undergraduate-marquette-core-curriculum-substitution.pdf>).

MCC Requirements for Advanced Standing (Transfer) Students

Students who transfer to Marquette University are placed into one of four MCC levels. Each level listed below specifies the MCC requirements that students are expected to complete at Marquette University.

Placement into levels one through three below is based on the number of accepted transfer course credits completed prior to the term of admission at Marquette. Test credits (e.g., AP or IB) and other prior learning credit (e.g., military education and training) are not included in the MCC Transfer Level Placement. For placement into level four, students must transfer to Marquette with a completed Associate of Arts (AA), Associate of Science (AS), or bachelor's degree. Students who have completed approved associate degree programs requiring a comparable breadth of transferable liberal arts courses to the AA or AS degree also will qualify for level four.

A MCC Transfer Level Placement is established based on the initial awarding of transfer credit after admission and adjusted, as needed, upon the receipt of final college transcripts reflecting additional earned credit. It is strongly recommended that final official transcripts are submitted to Marquette as early as possible to ensure an accurate MCC Transfer Level Placement is determined and reflected in degree requirements prior to finalizing class registration. Students maintain responsibility for submitting their final official college transcripts to Marquette in a timely manner and any class registration decisions made before the MCC Transfer Level Placement is finalized.

Credits completed at another institution after the term of admission do not change the MCC Transfer Placement Level.

Discovery Theme

Basic Needs and Justice

This theme explores the interrelationship between basic needs and justice. If something is so essential to human life that no human being can survive without it, then access to this basic need would seem to be a matter of justice. Yet the identification of basic needs is not necessarily straightforward. Food, water, clothing and shelter are all essential for survival, but how much of each constitutes a basic need, and how much is a matter of luxury? In what ways have these thresholds been culturally conditioned? Are higher order concerns like health care, education, social connection and freedom from the threat of violence fairly defined as basic needs as well?

This theme encourages a fuller study of the nature of the human person and the notion of a fully human life in order to answer these and related questions. At the same time, because the distribution of basic needs is a matter of justice, this theme also invites students to examine how different descriptions of basic needs have influenced the definition of justice and vice versa.

At what point does the lack of access to one's basic needs become an injustice? How should one react to the unjust distribution of basic needs? Can violence be used in the pursuit of justice or are nonviolent means the only option? Who bears the responsibility for ensuring a just distribution? Who (or what) is to blame for an unjust distribution? With a clearer picture of the basic needs that make up a human life and the norms of justice that regulate access to them, students will be prepared to identify and address injustices in the world around them.

Cognition, Memory and Intelligence

How do we process interactions with the world around us? How do we acquire knowledge? How do we make memories? How does language influence how we think? How do social interactions change how we think? How do we imagine things and events we've not experienced? How do new technologies change how we think? Why and how do the answers to these questions change over the course of one's life? How does lifestyle, injury or disease affect these processes? What is artificial intelligence, and how is artificial intelligence in computers and machines different from human intelligence?

Students choosing this theme will study the mind from a variety of perspectives, including: neurocognitive processes of early childhood and adult brain development, mental disorder, trauma and PTSD; language acquisition, speech pathology, and the cognitive operations of multilingualism and translation; artificial intelligence, machine learning and data science; and reflections on and representations and understandings of the workings of the human mind in history, theology, philosophy, literature and languages, and communications and media studies.

Crossing Boundaries: The Movement of People, Goods and Ideas

As our world grows “smaller,” our everyday lives are increasingly affected by global events. This theme is designed for students interested in global connections and their impacts both local and far away. Historically cultures intermingle, adapt and communicate with each other through voluntarily (migration/immigration) and involuntarily (war, conflict and displacement) movement of people, ideas and goods. Migration of people across political boundaries is a social, political, scientific and economic issue, presenting both great challenges and great opportunities. Migration also has a scientific perception: Scientists investigate topics as diverse as gene migration, population genetics and the psychological effect of migration on the young minds and adult behavior. Currently, scarcely any country in the world is not affected in some way by migration. Not only does migration reward interdisciplinary study; it demands it, if we are to begin to grasp its complexity and respond effectively.

Students studying this theme will investigate a wide range of questions about global boundaries, from a wide range of perspectives: Why does migration occur? What effects does it have on migrating peoples and on those who receive migrants? How do our concepts of political sovereignty and economic justice shape our responses to migration, and how might migration shape those concepts in turn? How can international, national and local communities work together to relieve suffering and distribute resources equitably?

Discovery Theme

Expanding Our Horizons

A defining characteristic of human beings is our desire to ask questions and to explore the unknown. We spend our lives seeking to understand our origins, probing the boundaries of the universe and uncharted frontiers, and investigating unsolved mysteries. Yet each new discovery reveals additional limitations that must be explored if knowledge and understanding are to proceed. Our impulse to expand our horizons can be seen in several traits: our innate, human creativity; our pursuit of new technologies that better respond to our challenges and provide greater insight into the unknown; and our use of imagination and inventiveness to examine our relationship to the world in which we live. Courses in this theme will focus on how the process of discovery - through art, scientific research and other modes of seeking answers to fundamental questions - expand our understanding of the value of life and enrich our interaction with our communities, the planet and the universe. Additionally, courses in this theme may engage the ways in which human activity and advancing technology must be weighed against immediate and long-term consequences, like climate change and pollution, in order to create sustainable solutions for the future.

Some faculty-led study abroad courses have also been approved, consult the MCC website (<https://www.marquette.edu/core-curriculum/mcc-study-abroad.php>) for a complete list.

Discovery Theme

Individuals and Communities

The nature of the relationship between the individual and the community remains a perennial question, at the heart of technological, political, religious and ecological thought. One cannot understand prominent human trends — like the tendency, both in history and in the present day, to cluster populations in urban environments — without attending to the longings of the individual for community and the reliance of the community on the individual. Yet the relationship between these two is fraught with ambiguity and tension. On the one hand, communities have amplified humanity's potential to overcome injustice, suffering and human limitations. Communities have enabled individuals to mobilize, innovate and act collectively for the common good. On the other hand, communities have also identified, stigmatized and exterminated outsiders. By utilizing tools of oppression, such as prejudice and discrimination, communities have also stifled progress and catered to fears, bigotry and hatred.

To explore these ideas, courses in this theme might focus on specific communities, such as the Marquette University community; they might examine individual cities, like Milwaukee, as geographically defined communities that have shaped — and been shaped by — the individuals who live there; or they might refer to community as a unit of analysis more generally to examine “community-level” processes such as racial segregation, civic engagement, public education, small business development, health care and civil engineering. Courses congruent with this theme are not restricted to any single understanding or definition of “community” and instead will consider communities of many kinds and scales, and with many purposes: religious, political, intellectual, geographical, ecological or virtual, to name only few.

Courses

CORE 1929. Foundations in Methods of Inquiry. 3 cr. hrs.

Compares and contrasts the approach of three different disciplines to a common theme. Asks students to reflect on what disciplinary methods they find most appealing or challenging, and why. Prereq: THEO 1001 or PHIL 1001; and Soph. stndg.

CORE 1929H. Honors Foundations in Methods of Inquiry. 1-3 cr. hrs.

Compares and contrasts the approach of three different disciplines to a common theme. Asks students to reflect on what disciplinary methods they find most appealing or challenging, and why. Completion of 3 credits satisfies the MCC Foundations in Methods of Inquiry requirement. As an Honors Program course, includes a more intensive research or project component. Prereq: Admission to Marquette University Honors Program.

CORE 4929. The Service of Faith and Promotion of Justice. 3 cr. hrs.

Designed to integrate the Marquette core by emphasizing the reflection on and application of knowledge and skills developed in the core for life beyond Marquette University. Special focus on vocation and discernment invites students to evaluate their coursework at Marquette alongside their own worldview and transcendent commitments in order to identify ways they are uniquely equipped to work for justice in the world. A collaborative, interdisciplinary analysis of a lasting problem in the local or global community presents a test-case for this integration of academic experience and personal faith for the promotion of justice, providing the foundation for an analogical application to student's lives and work after Marquette. Prereq: Jr. stndg.

CORE 4929H. Honors Service of Faith and Promotion of Justice. 3 cr. hrs.

Designed to integrate the Marquette core by emphasizing the reflection on and application of knowledge and skills developed in the core for life beyond Marquette University. Special focus on vocation and discernment invites students to evaluate their course work at Marquette alongside their own worldview and transcendent commitments in order to identify ways they are uniquely equipped to work for justice in the world. A collaborative, interdisciplinary analysis of a lasting problem in the local or global community presents a test-case for this integration of academic experience and personal faith for the promotion of justice, providing the foundation for an analogical application to student's lives and work after Marquette. Core Honors students are required to take this course during the third or fourth year of their undergraduate career. Prereq: Sr. stndg. and Admission to Marquette University Honors Program.
